

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The present invention relates to a method and system for factory inspection to be carried out by a client, having an object to provide a method and system for factory inspection capable of carrying out an proper factory inspection easily and rapidly. When carrying out a factory inspection, a client section transmits a desired inspection item to a server section through a communication network to receive the subject-of-inspection data selected on the basis of the inspection item through the communication network.